State cash balance low

School aid checks may be delayed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Comptroller George Lindberg is warning that the state may be forced to delay school aid payments of more than $97 million later this month.

Lindberg said Wednesday the balance in the state's general revenue fund is so low that the school aid checks due to be sent out Oct. 16 may have to be delayed for several days.

The comptroller's office is responsible for issuing checks for such things as school aid, welfare payments and bills submitted by various departments and agencies.

Lindberg has said repeatedly that a day-to-day balance of more than $100 million is needed to insure that all necessary payments can be made and bills paid on time.

The amount in the general revenue fund fluctuates, depending on the amount of tax revenues coming in and the amount of payments going out.

However, Lindberg reported that the balance dipped to $2.8 million on Wednesday, the lowest point in 14 years.

He said his office has had to delay paying bills three times in the past two weeks because of the low balance. These bills were later paid when more tax revenues accumulated in the general revenue fund.

If school aid payments are delayed, it could cause problems for some local districts, the comptroller's office said. Chicago, for example, would lose $5,000 a day in interest by not being able to deposit its $30 million monthly aid payment, a Lindberg spokesman said.

Lindberg, who has been reporting general revenue fund balances regularly in recent months, has blamed overspending by the administration of Gov. Daniel Walker for the low balance in the treasury.

Walker, through his press secretary, has accused Lindberg of "crying wolf" and of trying to whip up scare headlines for political purposes, contending that the state would meet all of its obligations and that fluctuations in the general revenue fund were normal.

Theft of 100 albums probed

More than 100 record albums, valued at more than $600, were reported stolen from Woolworth's store in downtown Dixon Wednesday afternoon.

Randy Kaiser, assistant manager, told police officers that the records were taken between 3 and 4:30 p.m. They were stolen from a display rack in the front part of the store.

Dixon police officers are investigating the incident.

Congressional nod to send Yanks to Sinai is closer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moving closer to giving President Ford the authority to send American technicians to monitor the Sinai accord, the Senate today refused to bar the use of U.S. armed forces to rescue the technicians in an emergency.

An amendment by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., banning military personnel and equipment was defeated 75 to 15.

The amendment was offered as a substitute for a House-approved amendment specifying that congressional approval of up to 200 Americans at Sinai desert stations would not give the president additional authority to introduce American armed forces into hostilities.

The House amendment by

Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., was adopted Wednesday night before the House passed the technician resolution 341 to 69.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., asked the Senate to write the same language into the Senate resolution to make it conform to the House resolution. This would avoid the need for a conference to adjust differences while Congress is in a week-long recess next week, he said.

A final Senate vote on the technician proposal is set for Friday.

The deployment of American technicians in the Sinai was part of the United States commitment in the peace accord between Israel and Egypt.

President Ford had sought approval of the stationing of the technicians in the buffer zone between Israeli and Egyptian forces by last Friday, but the Senate has yet to act on the proposal.

Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., has moved to scuttle the measure by returning it to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for further work. A vote on his proposal was set for today.

Sensors said they would take final action on the issue this Friday, the day they recess for their vacation.

If the Senate does take final action on the measure this week, it will have to accept the amendments tacked on to the proposal in the House and turn down a dozen others proposed by senators. Otherwise, final action would have to await the end of the week's vacation, when the two chambers could iron out their differences.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., manager of the measure on the Senate floor, urged his colleagues to adopt the proposal as offered by the House. Humphrey said time is essential, noting that congressional action on the measure will trigger final implementation of the peace accord.

Before approving the resolution, the House passed an amendment specifying that the measure gives the President no authority to introduce U.S. military force into the Middle East. The amendment, introduced by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., won approval of supporters of the technician resolution, including Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who said it would not bar Ford from using U.S. military strength to rescue the civilian technicians if they were in peril.

The House also approved on a voice vote an amendment requiring Ford to report to Congress on the feasibility of replacing the Americans with technicians from other nations.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who negotiated the interim settlement, has said both sides demanded that American technicians monitor the peace from a demilitarized zone in the Sinai.

Motion for change of judges filed by vote defendants

Citing prejudice on the part of two judges within the 15th Judicial Circuit, attorneys for two of three defendants indicted on voting charges in Dixon have filed motions for substitution of judge.

Atty. John Caluwaert filed the motions at noontime today in the Circuit Clerk's office on behalf of Jim G. Burke and Herb Dunphy.

Chief Circuit Judge James E. Bales assigned the cases to Judge John Rapp Jr., Mt. Carroll, on Oct. 1.

The motions claim prejudices exist on the part of Judge Rapp and Circuit Judge F. Lawrence Lenz, Oregon, toward the defendants.

Burke is named in a 12-count indictment charging him with solicitation and perjury; Dunphy is accused of solicitation, perjury and unlawful observation of voting in a five-count indictment. Also indicted by a grand jury after a probe of alleged irregularities in absentee-voting procedures in the April 15 city election was Alice Dempsey, who is represented by Atty. Willard Nelson, Morrison.

Judge Bales is expected to reassign the cases to another judge within the circuit. Under criminal law, defendants have the right to request substitution of two judges without formal hearing or any showing that prejudice exists.

Hirohito meets two of his movie favorites

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Japanese Emperor Hirohito fulfilled a "long cherished desire" in a daylong visit here, eating California avocados amid mariachi music and shaking hands with two of his favorite personalities, John Wayne and Mickey Mouse.

The emperor was scheduled to fly to San Diego today for a tour of the city's acclaimed zoo and to visit the Scripps Institution of Oceanography in nearby La Jolla. He flies to San Francisco late in the day for his next-to-last stop on a 15-day U.S. tour.

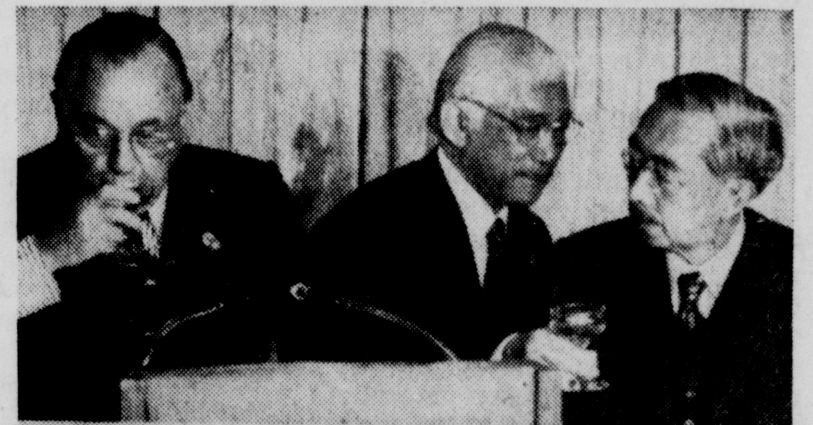

The emperor's plane circled the Grand Canyon briefly before arriving here from Chicago on Wednesday, and he later rode a tiny steam-engine train through a Disneyland exhibit showing the evolution of the national landmark.

The 74-year-old emperor and Empress Nagako were greeted at the amusement park gate Wednesday by Mickey Mouse and the Seven Dwarfs, then were seated on wrought-iron chairs for a command performance of the park's musical salute to the Bicentennial, America on Parade.

Hirohito and his wife earlier were hosted by Mayor Tom Bradley and other state and local officials, including Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., at a lavish luncheon in the downtown Music Center.

The lunch included filet mignon and California wines, and Hirohito's interest was piqued by the avocados in his salad and the music of a Mexican mariachi band in the hall.

Hirohito is a Wayne fan and had met Heston some years ago in Tokyo during the Japanese premiere of the movie "Ben-Hur," the emperor's news secretary said.

Natural gas shortage may soon force 500,000 out of work

WASHINGTON (AP) — A looming natural gas shortage may start forcing as many as a half million Americans out of work in a matter of weeks unless Congress and the Ford administration can reach a compromise on national energy policy.

Congressional testimony has indicated some 500,000 workers may be out of jobs when the anticipated natural gas shortage hits this winter. There are predictions the layoffs could begin soon after Nov. 1.

No one in Congress has challenged the prediction, but neither Republicans nor Democrats in the Senate have indicated willingness to budge from their positions on energy pricing — the issue that has put the Democratic-controlled Congress at odds with President Ford for almost nine months.

Each side has its own proposed solution for the gas shortage forecast for 14 states this winter. The Federal Power Commission says either bill could help reduce the shortage to manageable proportions.

Republicans are seeking an end to all price controls on natural gas. They say ending controls would increase the price and therefore the supply of gas available to the 14 threatened states.

Democrats have pushed for emergency legislation that would permit gas-short states to buy gas directly from gas-producing states, mainly Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas, for about $1.25 per unit. That price is almost 150 per cent above the current controlled price.

But Republicans, with the President's blessing, have refused to consider the emergency legislation except as part of their effort to eliminate price controls on natural gas permanently.

Democrats are refusing to allow a vote, saying elimination of price controls would bring the oil-gas industry a bonanza and worsen inflation and unemployment. They note House leaders say there is no chance of passing a long-range gas bill in the House this year.

An attempted compromise was defeated Wednesday.

By a 55 to 45 vote the Senate rejected an amendment by Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., that would have let the well price of gas rise sharply over the next five years, with oil prices reduced during the same period. At the end of five years, the President could have, with congressional approval, modified the price controls or removed them altogether.

In general, Republicans say price controls have created gas shortages by denying the petroleum industry money needed to develop more energy. Democrats generally agree that prices should be allowed to rise somewhat — but not to the level that might be expected if controls were eliminated.

The proposal was rejected after the Senate, on a surprisingly close 54 to 45 vote, defeated an amendment by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., seeking to break the nation's largest oil and gas companies into numerous smaller firms.

The shortage is expected to be greatest in 14 states, which have nearly six million workers whose jobs are dependent on natural gas. These states are Ohio, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, New York, Kentucky, West Virginia, Delaware, Missouri, Iowa and California.

Dissident Russian scientist awarded Nobel Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway (AP) — The 1975 Nobel peace prize was awarded today to Russian physicist Andrei Sakharov who helped develop the Soviet hydrogen bomb and then turned dissident.

The award to the 51-year-old scientist was announced by the Norwegian Parliament's Nobel committee which was understood to have discussed 50 candidates.

The prize amounts to $140,000. A gold medal and diploma go with the check to be presented at the Nobel ceremony here Dec. 10.

Sakharov's fight for civil rights in the Soviet Union and opposition to tight Communist party control cost him the rewards and position as a leader in the Soviet scientific community.

In recent years he has repeatedly spoken out in favor of other Soviet dissidents and appealed for amnesty for political prisoners.

In a recent book he also criticized Western nations for failing to prevent Communist takeovers in South Vietnam and Cambodia.

In the citation, the Nobel committee said:

"Sakharov's personal and fearless effort in the cause of peace among mankind serves as a mighty inspiration to all true endeavours to promote peace. Uncompromisingly and forcefully Sakharov has fought not only against the abuse of power and violations of human dignity in all its forms, but he has with equal vigor fought for the ideal of a state founded on the principle of justice for all.

"In a convincing fashion Sakharov has emphasized that the inviolable rights of man can serve as the only sure foundation for a genuine and long-lasting system of international co-operation. In this manner he has succeeded very effectively, and under trying conditions, in reinforcing respect for such values as all true friends of peace are anxious to support."

A question arose whether Sakharov would be allowed to travel to Oslo to receive the prize.

Airlines oppose Ford plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's plan aimed at stimulating competition in the air transportation industry is drawing strong opposition from airlines.

Ford announced Wednesday he is asking Congress to remove some of the authority of the Civil Aeronautics Board, to allow airlines more freedom to raise and lower fares and to start and stop service between cities.

Hisses for Ford and cheers for Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hisses and boos from some Capitol Hill conservatives greeted President Ford's campaign manager when he told his audience that Ford was a genuine conservative who deserved their support.

The conservatives applauded when a key political adviser to Ronald Reagan said the former California governor definitely will be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

The scene was a debate Wednesday night before the Conservative Union Club of Capitol Hill between Howard H. (Bo) Callaway, Ford's campaign manager, and Lynn Nofziger, a long-time GOP political activist representing Reagan.

The hisses and a few boos came from part of the audience of some 250 Senate and House

Administration officials contended the legislation would result in lower over-all air fares for the public by stimulating competition.

Major airlines objected to the proposal, saying it would lead to higher prices and turn the nation's transportation system into chaos.

The heads of House and Senate subcommittees involved with studies of airlines indicated agreement with the ef-staff members when Callaway said that Ford has been a conservative president.

Later, there were audible groans from a few in the audience when Callaway said conservatives should support Ford because "he's the only President we've got."

Callaway amplified that remark by asserting that Ford will be the nominee of the Republican party next year no matter how strong the Reagan challenge.

"And if you want to influence the direction of the party, you'll have more influence if you're closer to the nominee than if you're not," Callaway said.

Nofziger said there is no question that Reagan will be a candidate and that he knows — but can't tell — the date on which the announcement will be made.

fort to make air travel more affordable, but withheld immediate judgment on the Ford proposal.

Sen. Howard Cannon, head of the Senate Commerce Committee's aviation subcommittee, said, "I admit there is too much regulation. I am not ready to form a judgment on the legislation until I see it."

Accident leads to pot charges

The driver of an auto involved in a one-car accident Wednesday morning was being held in Lee County jail today, after Dixon Police found a large quantity of marijuana inside the vehicle.

Charged with possession of marijuana was Lyle A. Mull, 27, 1622 W. Ninth St.

Mull was treated at KSB Hospital for facial injuries suffered when the station wagon he was driving collided head-on with a utility pole in the 300 block of Commercial Ave.

A routine check of Mull's car turned up the plant-like substance in the rear of the station wagon.

The substance, later identified as marijuana, was impounded by police and was being held at the Law Enforcement Center.

Demands of Third World Nations

The United Nations have been holding meetings demanding that the wealthy nations, mainly the United States, taxpayers, hand over more money so the slaves in the poor nations do not starve to death.

Most of these nations are ruled by men who have shot their way to the top. After they get control they help themselves to any wealth that is available. They do not offer the working people any way to produce food or living necessities that can be sold in order to make a little profit for the workers. Incentive is eliminated and the people will not produce.

The United States government has given these countries enormous aid and that, of course, encourages them to demand more. The communist rulers of Russia explain to others how easy it is to sit down to a meeting and negotiate whatever they want from the United States.

Do you suppose your political leaders, Ford, Rockefeller and Kissinger, and your Democratic Congress would say, "Yes," we will help out with a share of what Russia and Red China will first do for their friends, the Third World Nations. If you do not get this help from Russia it is not our fault.

Find out really who your friends are.

The more food given to hungry people the more children they produce. The United States on this basis can be blamed for the world's increase in population. Is it wrong to help feed the starving?

It takes some type of incentive to produce more food than the farmer needs for his own family.

Nearly all these countries are socialistic or communistic in controlling their people, which makes it difficult for the United States to help in the long run, for this form of government continues to disintegrate.

Test ban without inspection?

Leonid Brezhnev and Andrei Gromyko, hardly pausing for breath after their strenuous bout of salesmanship at the European security conference, have resumed business this week under the sign that reads "disarmament." At the United Nations assembly session that began last week, the Russians are trying to focus world attention on their new draft of a treaty that would, ostensibly, prohibit all testing of nuclear weapons.

Sounds familiar? Yes, indeed. Back in the 1950s the idea of such a treaty had already, and very understandably, become internationally popular. Nikita Khrushchev went to the point of inviting the world to join Russia in disarming completely—on condition that nobody should be able to find out whether Russia had actually disarmed. The lengthy negotiations that were then undertaken ran up against the solid wall of Soviet rejection of any process of verification.

In 1963 Khrushchev and President Kennedy settled for a partial test-ban treaty, renouncing above-ground explosions which, because of the windborne radioactivity they cause, can hardly be confused with natural tremors on the world's seismographs. That treaty, literally, cleared the air. China and France rejected it, but their test explosions did not foul the atmosphere as much as the bigger Russian and American ones had done. Below ground, Russia and America continued to bang away, undeterred by the ritual appeals for them to stop.

In July, 1974, Brezhnev and President Nixon responded to those appeals to the extent of agreeing that after March, 1976, their two countries would limit the size of their underground blasts to 150 kilotons. This "threshold treaty" has found little international favor. A 150-kiloton explosion is six times as powerful as the one that destroyed Hiroshima. The only argument for agreeing on a threshold is related to the hoary old verification problem. Scientists may differ about the practicability of seismographic identification of all underground nuclear blasts, but the bigger the blasts the more certainly they can be distinguished.

The need for a threshold limitation, and the most difficult obstacle to the adoption of a comprehensive test-ban treaty, would be removed if the Russians would agree that there should be some realistic provision for verification. But the draft treaty that Gromyko is now offering shows that the Russians are still paranoidly opposed to even the most modest and unintrusive forms of on-site inspection.

A comprehensive ban, with proper verification, would not only curb the two superpowers' arms race but would also help to inhibit China and France from further testing—and the numerous near-nuclear powers from joining the nuclear club.

Another great hole in the new Soviet ploy is its bland unconcern about one of the trickiest aspects of the problem of halting nuclear proliferation. Among the merits of the 1968 non-proliferation treaty (NPT) was the fact that it took account of the hard truth that any state capable of staging "peaceful" nuclear explosions has a nuclear weapons capability.

Non-nuclear adherents to that treaty have specifically renounced the right to set off "peaceful" blasts like the one staged last year by India—and the ones eagerly envisaged by Brazil. In sharp contrast, adherents to Gromyko's treaty would specifically retain this right.

In backing away from the position they took when they were calling for general acceptance of the NPT, the Russians are not merely concerned to please India and Brazil and other such nuclear aspirants. Since the threshold treaty was signed last year, the Americans have been disturbed to find the Russians insisting, in the course of talks about implementation of the treaty, that they should be free to go on setting off nuclear blasts well in excess of the 150-kiloton limit so long as these were proclaimed to be "peaceful" explosions. So any country that accepted Gromyko's new treaty in good faith, and honestly complied both with it and with the NPT, might have to go on hearing distant rumbles from Russia which, even if the seismographs showed conclusively that they were not natural tremors, could be explained away as mere peaceful nuclear bangs.

Which suggests that Brezhnev's interpretation of, and enthusiasm for, "complete prohibition" may have something in common with Al Capone's.

Don't give Panama our canal

By JOHN F. McMANUS
BELMONT, Mass.—In 1903, the newly formed nation of Panama agreed to a treaty granting the United States a 10-mile-wide strip of land across its narrow mid-section (isthmus) for the purpose of building and maintaining a canal. The agreement, known as the Hay-Bunau-Varilla Treaty, gave the U.S. "all the rights, powers, and authority within the zone . . . which the United States would possess and exercise if it were the sovereign of the territory . . . in perpetuity . . ." The treaty still stands.

We then paid Panama $10 million for the Canal Zone, built and paid for the Canal, gave Panama an annual sum (now up to $1,930,000 each year), and have successfully run the Canal since its completion in 1914. Over the years, Panama's self-seeking politicians have complained about various provisions of the treaty, especially U.S. control over the Canal Zone. As part of a general trend of anti-Americanism throughout Latin America, demonstrations challenging our presence in the Zone were conducted in 1959, and full-scale riots broke out in 1964.

After the riots in 1964, President Johnson promised negotiations and eventually a new treaty. Little was the giveaway because it feared that done, however, because of strong Congressional opposition to any sell-out. But by 1974 the Executive Branch had grabbed so much power from an increasingly submissive Congress that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger arbitrarily signed "an agreement in principle" to turn the Canal over to the Marxist government of General Omar Torrijos.

Congressional reaction to Kissinger's move has been gratifyingly strong. At least 37 Senators are on record in opposition to "any relinquishment of authority" over the Canal. (Thirty-four Senate votes would be needed to block a new treaty.) In addition, there is strong House opposition to the proposed sellout. The House does claim a say in the matter by virtue of powers granted in Article IV, Section 3 of the Constitution.

But Parade magazine recently quoted Panamanian Foreign Affairs Adviser Julio Yao as saying, "If Panama does not recover the Canal Zone, no one can prevent the Panamanians from destroying, making inoperative, or paralyzing the Canal." An official in Panama's Washington Embassy confirmed the accuracy of both the statement and the sentiment it conveyed. The Los Angeles Times editorially supported "tens of thousands" of Panamanians "reinforced with thousands of other Latin Americans" might march on the Canal.

Threats and pressures obviously produce results, for General George S. Brown, chairman of our Joint Chiefs of Staff, in a complete reversal of position, recently announced his support of a new treaty. The General had just returned from a visit with Panama's Torrijos—made at the request of President Ford. Congressman William L. Dickinson (R-Ala.) also reversed his opposition to the sellout after a trip to Panama.

Obviously, the Canal is strategically important to the United States. Turning it over to Marxist America-haters is simply asking for trouble. But what we are witnessing is more than just a proposed giveaway of territory; for this operation is one additional step in the process of bringing the United States to its knees. The galling aspect of the whole business is that the sinister game is the work of diplomats and others who are supposed to be loyal to American interests. That they are not loyal should be obvious. And that we should retain the Panama Canal exactly as before is equally clear.

Mideast ante upped for U.S.?

Americans have been jolted by the revelation that their Secretary of State has half-promised to supply Israel with a medium-range missile, the Pershing, that is deployed by the United States solely as a nuclear weapon carrier. A half-promise may not be worth a wholehearted row; all Henry Kissinger has pledged his government to do (according to the leaked text of a secret addendum to the "memorandum of understanding") is to join Israel in a "study of high technology and sophisticated items, including the Pershing ground-to-ground missiles with conventional warheads, with the view to giving a positive response."

What, Americans and others are asking, does this classic example of Kissinger-style ambiguity actually mean?

Which Pershing, for instance, were Kissinger and the Israelis talking about—if, that is, they were talking about the same one? The production line of the current model, Pershing-1a, closed in June. The only way to get the missile to Israel before 1980 would be to take it out of the American army's own supplies (which neither the Defense Secretary, James Schlesinger, nor Congress would condone) or face the inordinate expense of restarting, and converting, the program to produce Israel's special non-nuclear variety.

Oh no, the Israelis now privately argue: they are just trying to pin America down on their future defense needs by making a bid for Pershing-2, the model that will become available in about five years' time.

Maybe. Or maybe Israel switched its sights to the later model after the fuss blew up. The American Defense Department's angry reaction to the leaked report (and who leaked it?) suggests, at the very least, that the issue was not made clear. Schlesinger has publicly fudged the extent to which the Pentagon was left out of things, but it seems that the Defense men did not know that the Pershing was going to figure in Kissinger's final intensive bargaining to get Israel's signature to the Sinai deal, let alone that he was going to commit his government to a "positive response."

When Israel began asking for the missile a year ago, the Defense Department's response, within the American administration, was decidedly negative; the Pentagon has never made any bones about the fact that it regards the Pershing as a vehicle for the delivery of nuclear warheads and that it has no conventional role. It is true that Pershing-2, because of its greater accuracy, is less completely unsuitable for conventional use than the current model. It is also true that it would be less unrealistic to build in special non-nuclear modifications, and a whole new warhead, for a system still in the planning stage than to monkey about with a program that has already reached its end.

But these qualifications amount to no more than saying that supplying Israel with Pershing-2 might be a less bad idea than supplying it with Pershing-1a. It would still be a bad idea.

Israel could, if it so decided, produce and explode a nuclear weapon: that is no longer seriously questioned. And it does not need the Pershing to carry the weapon: an airplane would do. But for Israel to ask for, and maybe get, the Pershing adds a dangerous degree of credibility to the fear that one day an Israeli government could make this decision. Successive Israeli governments have sworn that Israel will not be the first Middle Eastern state to fire a nuclear weapon; the present government has specified that it would not use the Pershing for this purpose—although in terms that implied that, if it wished, it had the ability to do so.

An elaborate and costly program could be devised to make Israel's Pershing and its warhead non-nuclear. But the Arabs would not believe that a reconversion back to the standard model was beyond Israel's technological abilities. Nor, one suspects, would the Israelis want the Arabs to believe otherwise. The lurking threat—even subsumed into an Israeli-American study committee—of an Israeli nuclear deterrent could be argued to serve Israel well. A deterrent, after all, deters.

But, as Schlesinger has said, it is not American policy to help Israel to "a position in which it overawes its neighbors." If the threat looms so large and so long as a Pershing—then Arabs, or some of them, are going to search hell and high water for an answer in kind.

The knowledge that the Pershing could introduce a whole new scale of weapon-hunting into the world's most explosive area, plus the discomfort of feeling that strange unguings were being plotted behind their backs, have stopped American Congressmen in their tracks. Senators who had been prepared to authorize the stationing of American technicians in Sinai—and Israel has not made this authorization a precondition for its signing the detailed Israeli-Egyptian agreement that it initiated recently—are now holding back while they demand to know just what has been promised, when and to whom, for Kissinger's Sinai triumph.

Oil industry hold oils info cards

By DON OAKLEY

The most highly guarded secret in America is the truth about the nation's oil and gas production and the extent of known or potential reserves, charges Rep. Charles A. Vanik, (D-Ohio). Congress really doesn't know how much oil and gas is in the ground waiting to come out—when the price is right, he says.

"The great big government of America—which many would like to miniaturize—begs the oil and gas information from an industry-managed reporting facility. There are no penalties for false information, the suppression of truth or for under-reporting . . .

"In this vacuum of information, the industry holds all the cards." Well, if the government really is that much in the dark about the situation, it can't be for want of cards of its own.

According to an estimate in the Wall Street Journal, the mountains of information the government requires from the oil industry is costing the 20 largest companies—and ultimately, of course, the consumer—about $60 million a year. At an average cost of $100,000, that is enough to drill 600 wells.

Standard Oil of Indiana, for example, has 636 miles of computer tape storing the information it has had to supply to just one government agency, the Federal Energy Administration. It gives the FEA about 225,000 pages of data a year on its various operations. Phone calls to the capital have soared to 27,000 a year from only 1,300 five years ago, and employees take more than 600 trips a year to Washington.

All the other companies complain about the money and manpower they are pouring into paperwork. Exxon last year submitted a one-shot report to the FEA of 475,000 pages, which took 100 employees two months to prepare.

Union Oil says regulatory requirements cost it about $3 million a year. Shell Oil has 250 employed working part-time on government regulations chores and says that even if the FEA closed up today (which would put 3,200 bureaucrats on welfare), it would still have to file 389 reports with 44 other agencies, ranging in frequency from once a week to once a year and providing figures on exploration and production, marketing, sales, profits and other aspects of its business.

Nevertheless, Vanik's Charge has been echoed in the other wing of the Capitol.

The big oil companies, operating as a club, are inhibiting production of oil until prices go higher, says Sen. Birch Bayh (D-Ind.). He and three other senators have introduced legislation to break up the 22 largest companies. They cite an antitrust and monopoly subcommittee report which found that "virtually all Gulf Coast outer continental shelf production comes from a couple of dozen producers, with the integrated major companies having the lion's share."

Aside from the highly questionable possibility that breaking up the oil giants or demanding more information from them would result in more and cheaper oil and gas for Americans, the interesting thing is that no other basic industry in the United States has anything remotely approaching "a couple of dozen producers," let alone hundreds of smaller, independent producers.

In the automobile industry, to take perhaps the most contrasting example, there are only three major manufacturers, the largest of which accounts for more than half of all production. Yet no one suggests we would have cheaper cars by breaking up General Motors into a number of smaller companies—one to make engines, another to make bodies, another to assemble them and another to market the finished vehicle.

If Vanik and Bayh are correct in their allegations, it would seem that the CIA ought to begin taking lessons in deception and conspiracy from the oil industry. Either that or "the great big government of America" could, indeed, stand some miniaturization.

'Yankee Doodle' our first patriotic song

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 26th in a series of articles on the American Revolution for the Bicentennial year prepared by the American Antiquarian Society in cooperation with the American Newspaper Publishers Association Foundation.

By DR. FRANCIS G. WALETT
Worcester State College
sing Yankee Doodle, that fine tune

Americans delight in. It suits for peace, it suits for fun,

It suits as well for fighting. With these words the COLUMBIAN SONGSTER of 1799 printed our first patriotic song. Under the title, the "American Spirit," Yankee Doodle appeared with all its lilt and appeal. From the Revolutionary War to the present, Americans, young and old, have delighted in the words (with endless rhyming versions) and tune of this song. The tune was widely known in the colonies before the American Revolution and even the British used it. At times it replaced the "Rogue's March" in drumming culprits out of camp. When the redcoats marched out to Lexington and Concord they fifted Yankee Doodle by way of contempt. They also played it in mockery of the Americans at Bunker Hill, but after that costly victory the tune must have haunted the British. General Johnny Burgoyne composed several theatricals that were presented at Faneuil Hall during the siege of Boston. In one of his farces, the "Boston Blockade," Yankee Doodle was played. But things were different after Bunker Hill and Americans had reclaimed the song as their own.

Although the exact source of the ballad is still a mystery, it seems certain that it originated in America. Some have argued that Yankee Doodle is foreign in origin — English, Hessian, Hungarian, Dutch, Irish, or Basque. But earliest verses that have been found make reference to the capture of Fort Louisburg on Cape Breton Island by New Englanders in 1745 and to other incidents in the French and Indian wars. Such facts point to an American beginning.

A curious reference to the popularity of the song appeared in the NEW YORK JOURNAL, October 13, 1768. It was reported that when British warships arrived in Boston harbor the previous month "the Yankee Doodle Song was the Capital Piece in their Band of Music." At that time the British were taunting the Americans with their own music when they came in with troops to overawe unruly Bostonians.

The tune of Yankee Doodle was not printed in Europe before the American Revolution so far as has been learned. Its first publication was a music sheet with words was in London by Thomas Sillern in 1775. It bore the title YANKEE DOODLE, OR (AS NOW CHRISTENED BY THE SAINTS OF NEW ENGLAND) THE LEXINGTON MARCH. This also made mention of Cape Cod, Nantucket, and Lynn, indicating that its probable source was Massachusetts. There was considerable pro-American propaganda in England at this time, and the publication of Yankee Doodle in this form would seem to have been part of it.

Regardless of origins the song appealed so much to patriots that it was played and sung everywhere. Thomas Aubrey, a British officer, wrote that "after the affair at Bunker's Hill, the Americans gloried in it. YANKEE DOODLE is now their paeon, a favorite of favorites, played in their army, esteemed as warlike as the Grenadier's March — it is the lover's spiel, the nurse's lullaby." There were also numerous Tory satires and parodies.

Throughout the Revolution Yankee Doodle was fifted, drummed, and sung. When Washington took command at Cambridge, a literary version called THE YANKEE'S RETURN FROM CAMP was widely printed in broadside form. Americans played it at the surrender of General Burgoyne at Saratoga and later at the great victory at Yorktown in Virginia.

Although the music of Yankee Doodle was printed in this country by 1799, the tune was not standardized until about 1850. As one modern author has put it, "Hitherto, every fiddler, flautist and fifer had played it folk-wise as he heard best."

This patriotic song, which has been played in so many different versions, has retained its popularity for over 200 years.

What is the basis of this great appeal? Surely, it is not because of any sense of majesty or great dignity. More apt perhaps is its appeal to our sense of humor. This jaunty, lilted air, with any number of amusing verses that we may compose, will probably appeal to the American spirit indefinitely.

The YANKEE's return from CAMP.

FATHER and I went down to camp,
Along with Captain Gooding,
There we see the men and boys,
As thick as hasty pudding.
Yankee doodle keep it up,
Chorus. Yankee doodle, dandy,
Mind the music and the step,
And with the girls be handy.
And there we see a thousand men,
As rich as 'Square David;
And what they wanted every day,
I wish it could be saved.

Yankee doodle, &c.
The lasses they eat every day,
Would keep a house a winter:
They have as much that I'll be bound
They eat it when they're a mind to.

Yankee doodle, &c.
And there we see a swamping gun,
Large as a log of maple,
Upon a ducid little cart,
A load for father's cattle.

Yankee doodle, &c.
And every time they shoot it off,
It takes a horn of powder—
It makes a noise like father's gun,
Only a nation louder.

Yankee doodle, &c.
I went as nigh to one myself,
As 'Siah's underpinning;
And father went as nigh again,
I tho't the deuce was in him.

Yankee doodle, &c.
Cousin Simon grew so bold,
I tho't he would have cock'd it:
It fear'd me so, I think'd it off,
And hung by father's pocket.

Yankee doodle, &c.
And captain Davis had a gun,
He kind of clapt his hand on't,

And fluck a crooked stabbing iron
Upon the little end on't.

Yankee doodle, &c.
And there I see a pumpkin well
As big as mother's bafon,
And ev'ry time they touch'd it off,
They scamper'd like the nation.

Yankee doodle, &c.
I see a little barrel too,
The heads were made of leather,
They knock'd upon't with little club
And call'd the folks together.

Yankee doodle, &c.
And there was captain Washington,
And gentlefolks about him,
They say he's grown so tarnal proud
He will not ride without 'em.

Yankee doodle, &c.
He got him on his meeting clothes,
Upon a flapping flailion,
He fet the world along in rows,
In hundreds and in millions.

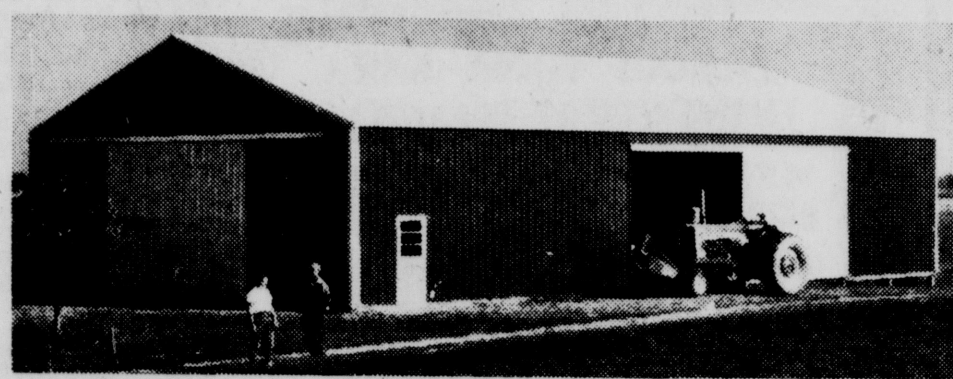

Yankee doodle, &c.
The flaming ribbons in their hats,
They look'd so taring fine, ah,
wanted pockily to get,
To give to my Jenimah.

Yankee doodle, &c.
I see another snarl of men
A digging graves, they told me,
So tarnal long, so tarnal deep,
They 'tended they should hold me.

Yankee doodle, &c.
It fear'd me so, I hoo'd'd it off,
Nor stop'd, as I remember
Nor turn'd about 'till I got home,
Lock'd up in mother's chamber.

Yankee doodle, &c.

Americans have enjoyed "Yankee Doodle" for over 200 years. While its origins are still unclear, the song is American. It is, in fact, our first patriotic song, and one that has lifted up the spirits of Americans in wartime as well as in peace. This broadside version of the lyrics was probably printed in 1775 when General Washington was first organizing the Continental Army at Cambridge, Mass. (Courtesy, American Antiquarian Society)

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, Oct. 9, the 282nd day of 1975. There are 83 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1934, King Alexander I of Yugoslavia was assassinated by a Croat student in Marseilles, France.

On this date:
In 1642, Harvard's first commencement was held.
In 1701, Yale College was founded.

In 1760, the Russians captured Berlin.

In 1871, nearly 1,200 lives were lost in a forest fire which destroyed Peshtigo, Wisconsin.

In 1910, there were 400 fatalities in forest fires which swept through six towns in northern Minnesota.

In 1958, Pope Pius XII died at the age of 82.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon Johnson signed a number of bills at Bethesda Naval Hospital, one day after an operation for removal of his gall bladder.

Five years ago: The U.S. concentrated all its B52 raids in Indochina on Laos, with nearly 30 bombers hitting targets along the Ho Chi Minh trail.

One year ago: President Ford told a news conference his economic plans could cut inflation by early in 1975.

Today's birthdays: Chairman Manuel Cohen of the Securities and Exchange Commission is 63 years old. Walter O'Malley, owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers, is 72.

Thought for today: Most fools think they are only ignorant — Benjamin Franklin, 1706-1790.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, early in the American Revolution, the Massachusetts House of Representatives in Watertown named a committee to make plans to outfit privateers for defense of the Colonies.

For Friday, Oct. 10, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Don't put your mouth in motion before your brain is in gear today. You could be very irritating to all within earshot.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
You'll find you're better at handling serious matters in the p.m. than in the a.m. Don't rush into decisions without weighing alternatives.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Your first impulse today is to look after your self-interests. You'll soon discover you'll accomplish more by adhering to the spirit of give-and-take.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
You'll be asked to do a favor you consider an imposition. You'll find you not only feel good about doing it, but are having fun, too.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
If you don't succeed on the first try — and you probably won't — hang in there. It may take several attempts, but you'll catch the brass ring.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
You're apt to experience some domestic pressures early in the day. Later, things will get brighter. You won't even remember what disturbed you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
An opportunity that will make or save you money will pop up suddenly. Be on your toes to grab it, for it will disappear as quickly as it appeared.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Keep your schedule flexible today. You're going to make some sudden changes in direction. You won't want to be locked into an outmoded plan.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Don't be surprised today if someone who owes you an old debt comes forth and pays at least part of the obligation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Your work habits won't be quite up to snuff today. Be careful how you handle tools, especially those that belong to others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You'll gain something of value today because one in a key position will help you accomplish things you could never pull off on your own.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
A rendezvous with a person you're very fond of is in the cards today. It will be surprising, because you'll meet in a place you'd least expect to encounter her.

Your Birthday
Oct. 10, 1975

Keep on the good side of your in-laws or family friends this coming year. One of them could put you on to something that will be extremely profitable.

Sex problems blamed on aggression

CHICAGO (AP) — Sexual impotency and frigidity frequently are acts of aggression by one sexual partner against the other, says a Utah psychologist.

Rarely are these problems organic, the psychologist, Dr. Ernst G. Beier, pointed out in an interview.

Rather, they most often have their origins in the unconscious mind, he explained.

Beier, a professor at the University of Utah, is coauthor with Evans G. Valens, a writer, of Mill Valley, Calif., of a book, People-Reading, recently published by Stein and Day.

In it, they explore the contradictions between what people say and do and what they really mean in much of their everyday behavior.

Sexual behavior reflects the general lifestyle of the individual; it is a mirror of the way a person lives, Beier said.

The person who is generally concerned about others is also concerned about the pleasure of the sexual partner, he said. And the person who enjoys danger and risk-taking may seek sexual relations under dangerous or risky conditions.

"Frigidity and impotence reflect psychosexual attitudes that may be as mild as temporary loss of pleasurable sensation or as severe as total unresponsiveness or a feeling of repulsion when touched by another human being," the authors wrote.

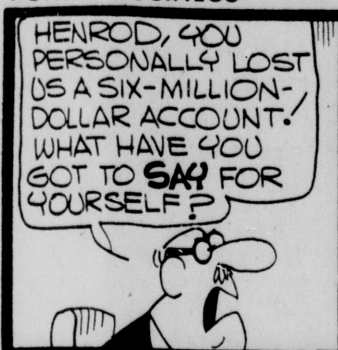

"Whatever the psychosexual attitude, they reflect a lifestyle the woman or man experience not only while making love but in most other significant encounters as well," they said.

"When a person claims that a lover's touch is repulsive, for example, this individual is probably also in the habit of keeping her or his distance in areas that are not in the least sexual," they added.

Frigidity has more of a cultural basis than impotence, Beier said, because traditionally the woman was thought to be subservient with the man having the right to pleasure.

"The idea of a woman being horny is still obnoxious to a lot of men," he said.

Ticketed after car collision

Robin J. Wilson, 19, 713 N. Dixon Ave., was ticketed by Dixon police for improper lane usage following an automobile mishap in Dixon Wednesday evening.

Wilson was driving northbound on Galena Avenue, attempting a right turn into the Eagle Food Store parking lot. Her car struck a Datsun truck belonging to Phillip N. Burger, 320 W. Morgan St., which was attempting to exit the lot. No injuries were reported.

Youths accused of vandalism

OREGON—Two youths have been accused by Ogle County Sheriff's Deputies of extensive vandalism done to homes and an auto north of Byron.

Charged with criminal damage to property were William E. Johnson 17, Rockford and Jon D. Schenck, 17, rural Byron.

The damage included spray painting of three homes, a car and sign in the Northern Heights Subdivision.

Accused in damage to car

OREGON—Ogle County Sheriff's deputies charged Shelly R. Mummert, 24, Leaf River, with criminal damage to property Wednesday. The charge stemmed from damage done to an auto owned by Chrystal Hise on Sept. 19. The damage included dents to the doors and fenders of the car and pulled wires from the engine compartment.

The New York-based retailer, trying to reorganize under federal bankruptcy laws, said the cutback "reflects the company's objective to concentrate its store locations where it is best known and receives the strongest

Seeks federal okay on hospital pay plan

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The head of the Illinois Department of Public Aid says he is seeking federal approval of new rules and regulations for payments to hospitals which treat welfare patients.

Director James Trainor said Tuesday a chief feature of the plan is creation of a three-member Hospital Reimbursement Review Board which would review costs before final payments to individual hospitals are made or new rates are allowed.

He said the new plan would help achieve "long-range savings... without impairing vital services to anyone."

The plan has been forwarded to officials of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare which must approve it before it can go into effect.

A department spokesman said it is hoped the federal government will act quickly so that the board can be picked by Trainor and begin functioning by Nov. 1.

Trainor said the new rules contained in the proposal "are aimed at those purveyors of medical services who are charging the state an excessive amount of money for services."

He said in the past, hospitals were reimbursed by the state "on a virtually 'no questions asked' basis, with costs fluctuating widely from hospital to hospital and service to service."

"We want equitable charges," Trainor said in a statement. "We question whether it is reasonable for average hospital charges for a normal childbirth to range from as low as $402 at one Chicago institution to as high as $934 at another."

He said the new board, if accepted by the federal government, would have "full discretion" in determining the reasonableness and necessity of state-paid medical costs.

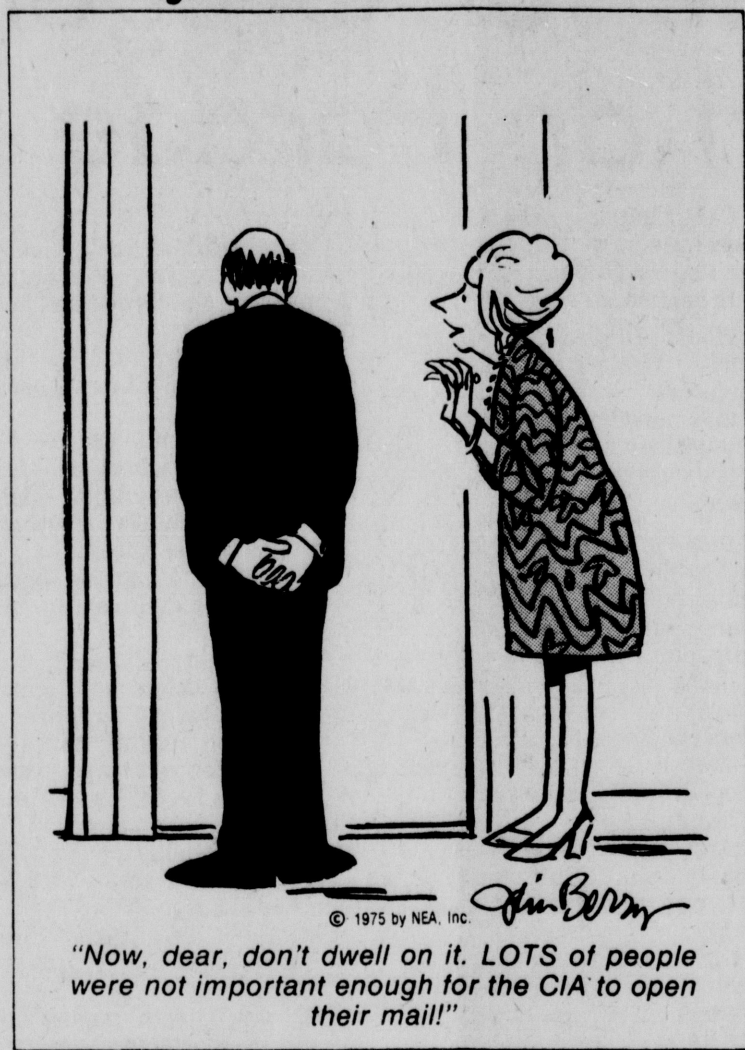

Medical payments constituted more than a third of the state's $1.7 billion budget for the Department of Public Aid in the fiscal year which ended June 30, a spokesman said. Reimbursement to hospitals totalled about $291 million, or 40 per cent of the total medical payments budget, she said.

Gov. Daniel Walker trimmed some $50 million from this year's initial request for the medical payments portion of the Public Aid budget, she said.

The department announced cuts in the fees paid pharmacists for filling prescriptions, but the size of that cut was decreased after several pharmacists in the state protested and threatened to withhold services.

The spokesman said she did not know how much the new hospital reimbursement plan would save if approved by the federal government, but added it may at least stem further rises in such costs.

People in the news

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, at 75 the oldest U.S. military officer in uniform, has been reappointed for another two years of active duty.

Secretary of the Navy J. William Middendorf II announced Tuesday that Rickover would continue as head of the nuclear propulsion team, where he is the principal figure in the Navy's atomic ship and submarine program.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. would be "foolish" if he started running for president nine months after becoming governor, his ex-politician father says.

Former California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Sr. was asked Tuesday why his son was shying away from announcing any strong desire to be president.

"He certainly would be foolish to run for president after nine months of the governorship. I think he owes a duty to the people to work as hard as he can. If that makes him a presidential candidate, so be it," said the 69-year-old Democrat.

Brown Sr. said his son was definitely "presidential timber."

Sweden is the most advanced country in women's rights, says the French minister for the status of women. Francoise Giroud added that she does not agree with the feminist movement in the United States.

"Women have made a battleground with men and because of it they've attained no real power," she said during a visit here Tuesday.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Former Nebraska Episcopal Bishop Robert Varley, who says he had to overcome alcohol and drug dependency, is now counseling others on overcoming addiction.

"I'm going to be doing marriage and family counseling," said Varley. "Dependency and alcoholism are family diseases so we are treating families."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Mac Davis has been sued for divorce by his wife of five years.

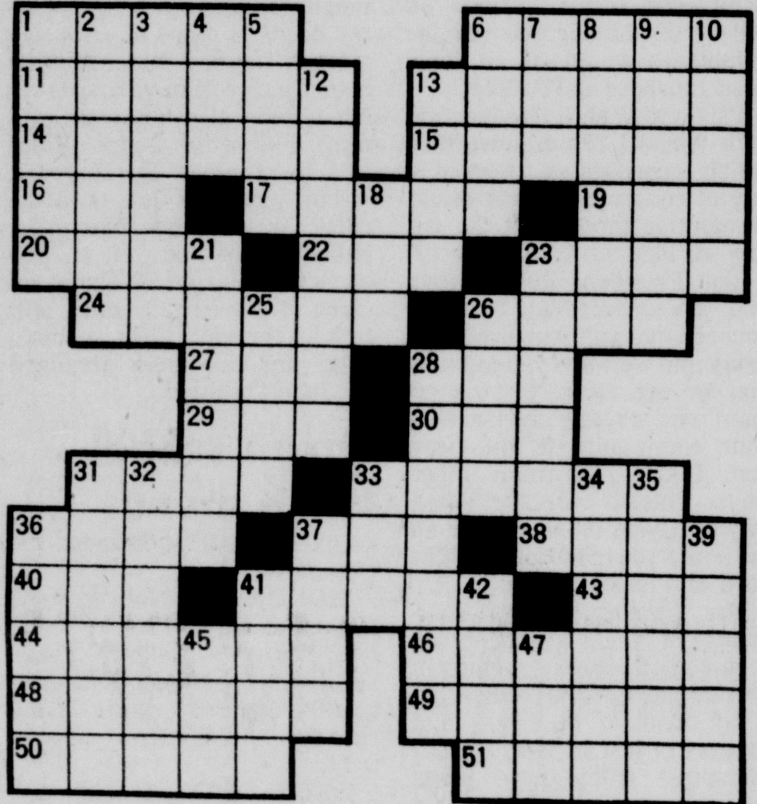

Sarah Jane Davis, 24, separated from the 33-year-old entertainer three days ago.

WHITE PINES RD. — OREGON

The Doctor Says :

Age may be factor in elderly man's problem

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — My 79-year-old father asked me to write to you and get your opinion. His doctor discovered that he had high blood pressure with a reading of 210.

He was put on Esimil. Most of my father's old friends are on Diuril and some on a diet and some on low-cholesterol, salt-free diets. We asked the doctor and he said no diet and that Esimil is diuretic.

My father is 5-feet-3 and weighs 179 pounds. The doctor listens well but does not communicate and is very busy. My father wants to know if he should continue with this doctor or should he seek a hypertension specialist?

I have read that a diseased kidney can cause hypertension. My father urinates frequently at night. The doctor said this was normal. I also asked if it could mean a heart problem. The doctor said no. No tests were taken of any kind except taking the blood pressure and listening to the heart.

DEAR READER — Your father is not young any more but even so a lot might be done for him. Anyone his height and weight with high blood pressure should be on a diet, in my opinion. Also, I would like to see everyone with high blood pressure have an electrocardiogram (ECG or EKG). Several blood pressure measurements are needed to be sure what the level really is.

Your father is also in the right age group to have an enlarged prostate. Perhaps the doctor ruled that out, but the need to get up at night might be related to that.

It certainly wouldn't hurt to have a consultation with another doctor, perhaps a specialist in internal medicine, to review your father's overall status. A second opinion is often helpful.

A diseased kidney or circulation problems to the kidney can cause high blood pressure. Part of a complete examination includes sufficient studies to rule out a number of known causes of high blood pressure that should be treated differently than the more common forms of high blood pressure.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is the medical term for dropsy? We have a daughter who has been taking a lot of tests. The doctor said that he couldn't find anything wrong with her except that she has edema. She swells all over, sometimes worse than other times. We wondered if that edema might be what we always called dropsy.

DEAR READER — Yes, the swelling caused by edema is old-fashioned dropsy. However, swelling can be caused by many things, some not serious and others more so. I presume your daughter's doctor didn't find any serious medical problem.

Edema or water accumulation can be from hormone influences as before normal periods, varicose veins, liver disease, kidney disease or heart failure. The most common use of the term dropsy in previous times was for the fluid accumulation found with heart, kidney or liver disease, and apparently your doctor doesn't think your daughter has these problems.

MAJOR COLLEGE HIGHLIGHTS

HIGHLIGHTS (for October 11th)
More big questions will get some answers this Saturday: just how strong are the two major powers in Oklahoma? What about the two powers in Texas? In Michigan, the Big Two clash head-on to establish state supremacy. All in all, there are five outstanding college football games including a meeting of No. 1 and No. 2 in the East.

The national spotlight has to be on the Texas-Oklahoma game in Dallas. This is the 70th meeting between the two with Texas leading the series, 42 to 25. Since the Sooners barely escaped with their lives against both Miami and Colorado, they're only slight favorites ... one point is the difference. That intra-state rivalry between the two Michigans in the Big Ten would mean a little more if their won-loss (and tie) records were a little different. However, Michigan State's win over Notre Dame coupled with Michigan's victory over Missouri gives this game an added plus. We're picking Michigan to win it by 5 points.

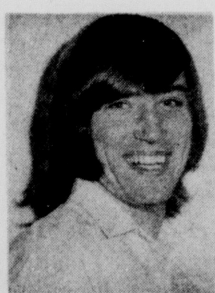

Big Eight rivals Oklahoma State and once-beaten Missouri battle head-to-head in Columbia. The Cowboys' biggest win to date was the 20-13 victory over Arkansas while Missouri's upset of Alabama in the season opener was their big one. In what just might be a free scoring game, Oklahoma State will be our favorite by three.

Staying stride for stride with Texas in the Southwest Conference are the Texas A & M Aggies. Undefeated and running up impressive win margins, A & M meets tough Texas Tech Saturday. The Aggies are 14 point favorites to win No. 4, but the Red Raiders almost clipped Oklahoma State last week.

A quick look-in at our batting average shows that we've crept ahead a couple of notches. The totals through Saturday, September 27th, are 504 right, 168 wrong, and 19 ties, for an average of an even .750.

And finally, in the East, there's the struggle between the early leader in the race for the Lambert Trophy, undefeated West Virginia, and Penn State. We think the Nittany Lions are going to be gunned down by some fancy shooting Mountaineers ... West Virginia by a single point.

Ford most overridden president of century

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, defeated in his battle with Congress over child nutritional programs, is having a higher percentage of his vetoes overridden than any chief executive since Andrew Johnson served in the White House more than a century ago.

Tuesday's decisive Senate and House votes to enact a $2.75-billion nutrition bill over the President's objections marked the seventh time in 14 months that Congress has overridden a Ford veto.

The House tally of 397 to 18 was 120 more than the needed two-thirds, and the 79 to 13 Senate vote was 17 more than necessary, with Republicans breaking ranks to contribute heavily to the tally.

Since becoming president, Ford has vetoed 39 bills. The seven successful overrides give the heavily Democratic Congress a score of 18 per cent. Woodrow Wilson, overridden on six of 44 vetoes, is next highest in the post-Johnson era with about 14 per cent.

Unless Ford and Congress can agree on spending cuts, Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower vetoed 181 bills in eight years, and Congress only overrode him twice, also about 1 per cent.

Ford may get a chance to veto a lot more bills. Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., says Ford is adamant on cutting spending. He quoted Ford as promising that "if he has to veto 100 bills to hold down spending, he'll do it."

Johnson, a Republican, vetoed 29 bills during his presidency from 1865 to 1869. Congress overrode him 15 times, a score of more than 50 per cent and by far the worst presidential performance in the nation's history.

Since then, virtually all presidential vetoes have stuck. One reason is that in most cases, Congress and the White House have been controlled by the same party.

By comparison, Congress overrode 12 of President Harry S. Truman's 250 vetoes, or about 5 per cent. Truman was a Democrat.

Democrat Franklin D. Roosevelt, who served a record 12 years in the presidency, vetoed a record total of bills — 635. Congress overrode him only nine times, or about 1 per cent of the time.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE E-688: Opal V., aged 25, is expecting her first baby shortly.

"But, Dr. Crane," she protested, "my husband keeps insisting it is going to be a boy."

"Actually, I don't care, though if we have several, it might be safer for the oldest to be a boy."

"But my husband seems to dislike the idea of having a girl baby."

"And I have noticed the same attitude on the part of many married men whose wives are pregnant."

"Why do so many men seem to dislike the idea of fathering girl babies?"

Sex Prejudices

Opal's husband is probably typical of a majority of young married men.

Yet a man's daughters are more likely to nursemaid him when he becomes a senile old man!

For daughters, as a rule, are more closely knit to their parents than are sons.

For a dutiful daughter is more father-oriented than a dutiful daughter-in-law, though many of the latter are actually delightful exceptions to that rule.

So here are some of the explanations for the usual father's seeming preference for a boy baby:

(1) He feels it is a reflection of his own masculine virility!

For there is an age-old but erroneous belief that whichever parent is dominant, will determine the sex of the offspring.

That's not true, for chance (plus possibly the acidic condition of the wife's vagina) determine the baby's sex.

(2) Men often realize the ease with which women can be duped into illicit affairs where they become convenient concubines and easy campus bed mates of college men, only to end up with unwed pregnancy and/or venereal disease.

The usual husband subconsciously is thus prejudiced against a girl baby at the outset, figuring he may thus inherit the financial burden of caring for his pregnant but unwed daughter and then maybe doing the same for his illicit grandchild.

Obviously, these views are seldom verbalized precisely but they are what Vance Packard would call the "hidden persuaders" they subconsciously mold male opinions.

(3) Husbands realize this is still a man's world, despite the ERA zealots to the contrary, so they prefer to procreate sons rather than daughters, since they figure the sons will bring more fame and fortune to the fathers.

Thus, the usual husband hopes his son will reach higher goals than he has attained, whether in sports, business or the professions.

Many a man who failed to win a varsity letter in college sports, will thus tutor his son during high school, hoping the son will thus gain what dad missed.

That's also, in reverse, why wives often try to attain stage

Democrats John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson vetoed 21 and 30 measures respectively between 1961 and 1969 without ever losing.

Richard M. Nixon, battling Democratic Congresses, vetoed 43 bills in 5½ years and lost five times or about 12 per cent of his vetoes.

Tuesday's action marked the third time in recent weeks Congress has enacted a bill expanding social program into law over Ford's veto.

The other two were bills covering a variety of federal health programs and the appropriations measure for the government's education programs.

Complaint by Wisconsin convicts

WAUPUN, Wis. (AP) — Inmates at Waupun State Prison have complained to a legislative panel about penitentiary rules which restrict the liberties they said they deserve.

Because of the rigidity, "sooner or later this joint is going to bust open," antiwar bomber Karleton Lewis Armstrong testified.

Armstrong, serving 23 years for a 1970 University of Wisconsin explosion that killed a student, was one of 10 convicts who registered grievances Tuesday with the Senate's Committee on Governmental and Veterans Affairs during an unusual hearing behind prison walls.

Committee chairman Monroe Swan, D-Milwaukee, scheduling another hearing today, said prison officials would have a chance to respond next Tuesday at a hearing in Madison.

The committee is examining rules enforcement and their effect on inmates.

Inmates argued for more liberty on grounds that it would help rehabilitate them.

"If they want us to return to society as responsible citizens, let us learn responsibility here," Danny Shears said.

Convicts told the committee that written rules are too often interpreted subjectively by guards, and that inmates are abused by unwritten rules created arbitrarily.

Armstrong, who was on the FBI's list of most-wanted fugitives when captured in Canada, testified for more than an hour.

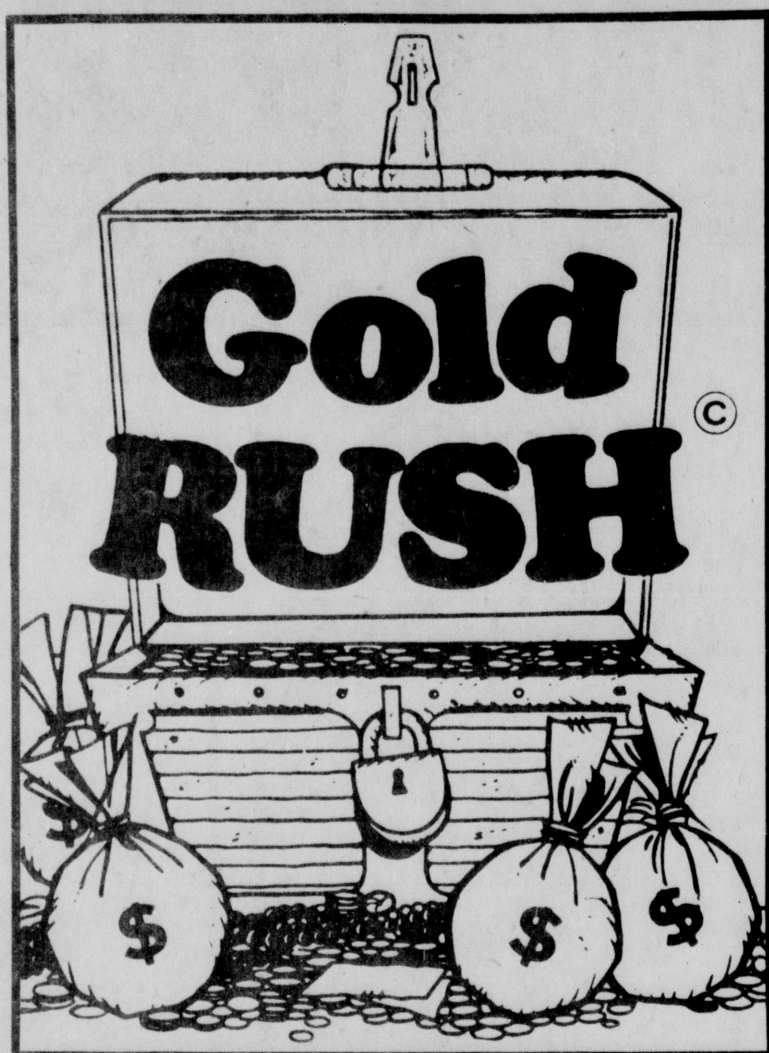

He said he has filed 40 grievances since arriving at Waupun and that only four have been decided in his favor.

Inmates should be allowed to form unions, he said, petition collectively and vote in state elections.

Armstrong objected to censure of mail, limits on visiting privileges, and rules governing personal belongings, dress and grooming.

A chief problem, he said, is inadequate definition of personal items under rules designed to deprive inmates of contraband articles.

"The purpose of the contraband rule is merely as a tool of repression," Armstrong said.
